The life of children in Taiwan is very different from that in West Africa. Children in Taiwan go to school around eight o'clock in the morning and go home after school on weekdays. Back at home, they may watch TV, and enjoy some delicious snacks like chocolate. But, where does the sweet chocolate come from? It comes from cocoa beans in West Africa.

There are many small cocoa bean farms in West Africa, and 70% of cocoa beans in the world come from West Africa. There is much work at cocoa bean farms, and farmers are always in need of workers. In Africa, human traffickers take kids away without telling their parents. Then, they sell these children. These poor children are only nine to thirteen years old. They work 14 hours a day and seven days a week. They pick the cocoa fruit from the cocoa trees and carry very heavy cocoa fruit. Also, the farmers often hit them. They cannot fall down or cry. Life on the farm is hard.

What do you think of when we talk about Paris? Coffee shops, of course! There are many coffee shops in Paris. You can see one on the corner, on the road, on the street, or in the lanes between streets. In other words, you can see coffee shops everywhere in Paris.

People in Paris like to drink coffee. They start a day with a cup of coffee in the morning, have another in the afternoon, and usually have still another before they get off work. At night, they finish their meal with coffee. People in Paris always say, "If I am not in the coffee shop, I am on the way to the coffee shop."

In Paris, there are a lot of people sitting under big colorful umbrellas. They don't like to sit in the coffee shop, even on a cold day. Outside the coffee shop, they enjoy the scenery from their seats. At the coffee shop, they may work on their computers, chat with their friends, have a meal, or just sit there doing nothing. It is not just a place for them to enjoy a cup of coffee. Next time you visit Paris, stop by a coffee shop and have a cup of coffee.
