Child marriage is not possible in many countries in the world, but in Africa and in India, it is very common. Last year, over 250 million girls around the world got married under 15. In Shravasti, India, one in four girls gets married at the age of 10 to 17. These girls are all from poor families and their husbands are usually about their fathers' or even their grandfathers' age.

“Money marriage” is another name for this kind of marriage. Young girls become “money wives” because their families give them away for money. For many money wives, their life at their husband’s home is often terrible because their husbands may get angry and hit them. Because their husbands “bought” them, they must work for hours every day, and live like slaves.
