Cheese is everywhere in our lives. It's in bread and cakes at breakfast, in sandwiches at lunch, and in pizza at dinner.

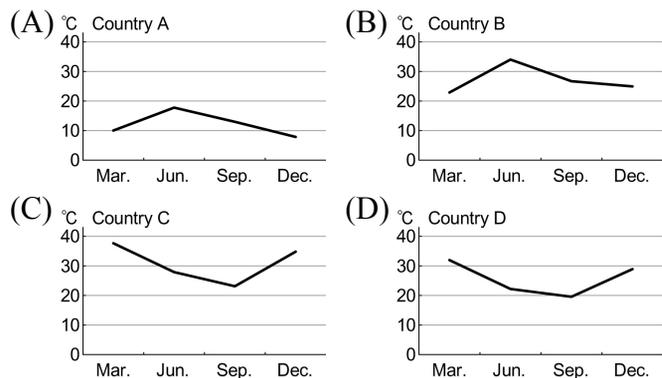

Humans started to use cow and goat milk to make cheese a long time ago. Cheese doesn't just taste good; it is also rich in calcium. Humans need calcium to stay healthy. A man needs two glasses of milk a day (250 grams each glass) to get enough calcium. And having just two slices of Gouda cheese (about 30 grams) will be enough.

In Taiwan, each person eats 2.69 kg of cheese a year on average. By 2030, the number will be closer to 3 kg. But Taiwan is not a good place to make cheese. The average annual temperature in Taiwan is around 24°C, but cows make the most milk around 15°C. So, the hotter it is, the less milk they make. There is not enough milk to make cheese in Taiwan, so businessmen here have to buy cheese from other countries. Most of it is from the USA, New Zealand and Australia.

Somniloquy is a kind of sleeping problem. People with somniloquy sometimes talk in their sleep, but at the time they don't know it. Although a sleeping problem is mostly not dangerous, people with somniloquy cannot get enough good sleep. Also, it can cause some problems for their bed partners.

There are some ways to stop sleep talking. For example, go to sleep and wake up at about the same time every day, even on weekends. Don't drink coffee or tea late in the afternoon or evening. Make your bedroom dark and quiet before you go to sleep, and don't use a cellphone before you go to sleep because the screen light could keep you up. Doing sports during the day can help, too.

Although these things can help, people with serious somniloquy should go to see a doctor. A good night's sleep is one of the most important things to any living human.
